

Salvation of the Saviors 11_Series 369

Thinking, reasoning, speculating...

Every day we speculate about different things. While we do not ever live for the sake of speculations and we hardly ever speculate in order to live.

When writing, you keep analyzing everything that you have accumulated but have not sorted out yet. This makes you see deeper and wider. I suggest that everyone start writing. Write down your thoughts. It is of no importance whether anyone will ever read it or not. The main thing is to put everything together in your head, systematize your thoughts, and you might have a more harmonious picture of the world than you imagine it now, and, above all, you will be able to share it with others. This will help both you and those with whom you have shared, at least to some extent, to understand what is happening before your eyes in order to make further decisions. Of course, thinking and reasoning, in principle, are difficult. It is even harder to speculate about THE WAY YOU THINK. But the hardest part is to say what you think about your thoughts. So, write, but leave time for reflection; and when the time comes, stop reflecting and START DOING.

Nowadays, public opinion puts pressure on Man, forcing him to fit into a kind of “matrix” created in the framework of controlling people, being dependent on a bunch of conventions and prescriptions imposed on them. The weak ARE NOT ABLE to withstand the pressure of society and bow down. Only the strong are able to defend their right to the way of life that they consider to be correct, which they have gained through their life experience, including the new knowledge that has opened up before them, and not on what is now imposed by society, which itself is not able to see what and who it is directed by and where all this is leading. It is from these people that saviors will begin to appear. That is the conception of their salvation (preservation) so that it is they who will bring truth and knowledge to all people.

The satellite can stop the tram at any moment and then start it again, but the tram travels along the rails in one direction only and cannot turn, get off, the rails. A man sits in a tram. He has no idea where he ultimately wants to go. The tram continues on its way along the rails, and the Man looks around. And one day – he SEES A CEMETERY FAR AWAY... Many are not satisfied with living on rails that lead to who knows where. They would like to go where they want, not where the tracks lead them. But in order to fulfill your purpose, you HAVE TO KNOW YOUR PURPOSE. The purpose of life! Where can Man get such a purpose? By taking on faith someone else’s speculations or revelations?

But if Man does not want to take anything for granted, if he wants to know, there is nothing left for him but to figure out everything on his own! And to understand that the TRUTH IS ALWAYS NEARBY. However, no matter how long you look for it, it is always invisible. And not because it is hiding or your eyes are not very keen-sighted nor, the instruments are not the best. The Truth is the truth; it cannot be expressed via the images of human reasoning. What do we do in this case? – To collect these images like a broken mirror. – Bringing together the images of all people. And when people finally get together, then the image will be the veritable truth. And it turns out that people begin to speak one language, because the image that is in front of their inner gaze can be expressed in only one language – the language of the truth. This is difficult for many people because we are used to thinking that the goals we have set for ourselves are best achieved by arranging all people according to their qualities, talents, and abilities. Everyone is placed in a hierarchy according to the level of worthiness defined by usefulness. The Chinese, for example, believe that just as organs in the body are placed according to their nature and function, so people in society SHOULD BE PLACED according to their talents. Those with the greatest talents are at the top. Those with fewer talents and of lower quality are one step below. In my opinion, the Chinese are not quite right –society will be a healthy, capable organism only if the brain cells TAKE THEIR PLACE IN THE HEAD and the anus cells are in the appropriate place. This does not mean that the body cares less about the anus. No, absolutely not. For instance, at the first sign of a problem, IT (the brain) directs all of its strength to CORRECT the DISORDERS in the waste disposal system. However, in order for maximum help to be provided to every area, they all must be in their correct place. If everything is lumped together, instead of an organism, there will be a pile of incapacitated biological material that will soon rot away. This is what we are witnessing now, both indirectly and unconsciously. By virtue of our cognition, we take part in it. Because – the brighter the fires of knowledge are kindled, the more the darkness in which we have been immersed is revealed to our astonished eyes. And the awareness of this darkness is the PATH TO KNOWLEDGE and the pursuit of the light.

Knowledge requires a change in consciousness, but no one likes to reconsider THEIR LIMITED VISION of the world. However, one can recognize it without knowledge. It is through this method that religions, ideologies, the so-called Histo(rah)ry and false values are introduced into people's consciousness. Here's an example of this. It is simple and straightforward. Have you ever thought of the fact, for example, that the very first attempt to process a heated piece of metal was impossible? Which took place, we are told by historians, in that historical time somewhere between the 9th–7th century B.C. Since childhood, the first steps in the transformation of the surrounding world has been hammered into our heads, with the standard phrases of would-be historians about ... A fire is burning. A piece of ore falls into it (it does not matter who brought it and how it was determined – that it is iron or copper ore – it does not matter). And it doesn't matter how ~~and~~ or who threw it into the fire. The melting temperature of copper ore is somewhere around 1,000°C, and of iron is 1,300–1,000°C (I could be wrong, but not by much). However, a campfire does not reach such a temperature. But the one sitting by the fire and the one who brought a piece of ore and somehow determined that it was ore and that it had to be thrown into the fire, REALLY WANTED to make a saw, because it was time to start sawing down trees and building houses and ships out of them, on which one could sail and explore the world. So – both of them really wanted to make the first saw. Let's say that the ore has melted and a piece of metal has appeared in the fire. In order to forge this piece of metal and make a plate from it to make the first saw, the temperature of this piece must be at least 600–1,000°C. But better 850–1,000°C. But how you do it without bellows? Let's say they figured it out. But iron (copper) cools quickly in the air. Forging takes 8–15–20 seconds (depending on the piece's mass accumulating heat). Once again the process had to be repeated - the piece was thrown into the "fire", heated, and taken out... You also need something to forge this piece on, and something to forge and shape it with (banging and pounding on it). Most likely, the anvil was a large stone that lay by the fire, and the sledgehammer was a large rock, which later became the tool of the laborer. One also had to take the metal out of the fire. What did he do this with? With wooden sticks or with hands? Most likely, the guys at the campfire were handling it with their hands, which, probably (my guess, not the historians) both of them, sitting at the campfire, had hardened paws like the ones from the Spielberg movie "Predator" (the one Schwarzenegger fought). And not just keratinized, but having something like asbestos in the composition of this layer... And this is also permissible.

So, they shaped (forged) a plate to make the intended saw. But now they have to make the teeth of the saw. And for that they need a file! THE FIRST FILE ON EARTH! But to make the first file, you need the first file!

The funny thing is that this fact is already enough to acknowledge the absurdity of the entire evolutionary (social) theory, if we bear in mind the history of mankind in the initial period of the creation of implements. I am confident that the vast majority of those who read these words, in my opinion, “fundamental arguments” will apply this key basic question to the current situation. The situation of the lies that have been created and surround us, which are ubiquitous in almost everything. However, we must admit, are crumbling under the pressure of discovered knowledge, hidden from us in favor of those processes that were “launched” in their time as part of the Brain Genotype Development Program. Try to comprehend the stages of any first production process that you had to go through to create any item at all. And better yet, to really convince yourself in practice – go to the countryside and first make a fire without matches, then throw a big bolt in there, try to heat it up, take it out with your hands, and then, using your hands, try to forge it with just stones ...!

Well, perhaps, all this was given to people from outside? To all people, except those who remained in what we now call Russia, after the extermination of the people by the invaders. For those, the almost 20 million that were left - similar technologies and techniques that we still do not know about or have now, were the normal realities of their lives. Man is not a product of the evolution of the Species on Earth. This is probably clear to many people by now.

And if we take this period as the general history of the creation of basic implements (understanding how all this was introduced through humans for their own use in their development), then this method of obtaining steel will be the basis of the entire history of engineering and technology. Then, too, civil history acquires a very different chronology. Without the steel tool, man could not have come out of the Neolithic... First, the Blacksmith and the Locksmith needed to appear in the human community, and then they would make the appearance of Carpenters possible! When man made steel – not iron, but steel – he created chisel #1 for notching file #1 ... and – then man created the first file. There is no other way. With this great strategic tool, it was possible to work non-hardened steel (iron). File #1 created the first saw for cutting both wood and metal – along with the hammer, chisel and file. That is, it was the PRODUCTION BASE for the creation of all of mankind's tools. The Saw is for Wood. It saws a tree and makes a board. Then came everything else: shovels, pickaxes, chisels... And then it became possible to make ships, to build scaffolding and to erect buildings. After the chisel and the knife were created, then the razor was created.

But then we draw a sad conclusion – since we have already learned to think – all these “ancient” frescoes and vases with the clean-shaven faces of the so-called “antique” athletes are artifacts created not earlier than the 17th–18th centuries! It is the same with the “SvetL” Generator and its Programs! The Generator is the “first file”! I am writing this only to give impetus and direction to those who have begun to think and reflect. I am not teaching anyone anything. I am just holding a lantern, - you go towards the light, if, of course, there is a desire...

The most incomprehensible thing in this world is that, in my opinion, it is comprehensible. Man should find the “mystery of life” in himself, and not blindly believe in other teachings. Read everything, listen to everyone and DON'T BELIEVE ANYTHING until you can confirm it with your own investigation and comprehension. The obvious should be admitted: only those who want to understand do understand. But the heart of the matter is that happiness lies not in knowledge, but in the process of gaining knowledge!

We discover something new for ourselves only when we are ready to receive this information. Until the moment comes, we do not even notice the things that seem obvious to most. The strongest impulse to philosophical contemplation and metaphysical comprehension of the surrounding world is given to us by the recognition of impending death and a vision of the sufferings and misery of life. If our life had not had the end and had not been filled with suffering, then perhaps it would not have occurred to anyone to ask why the world exists and why it is exactly the way it is.

But on the other hand, we are not able to reach out beyond the patterns into which we have been driven, thus limiting our thinking about practically everything. PATTERNS GENERATE consumer desires in Man. While being in their power, he is completely determined in this direction. He is neither able to hear any thoughts unrelated to this direction nor adequately respond to the situation. Adequately is not necessarily effectively. When people are running around a burning house in panic, their actions are ineffective but adequate. But if the father of the family is watching football in the burning house, and the mother is putting the children to bed, no matter how effective their actions are, they are a priori inadequate for this situation. If we rate a consumer society from this point of view, it consists of inadequate people. Everyone realizes that they are suffering from a disease called "death." No one doubts that one will die. Except that the awareness of the danger DOES NOT PROMPT anyone to seek a solution to the problem. Do you not agree, it is very strange that everyone wants to live to death, and no one wants to live to see life? No one can intelligibly explain why people who know about death, who do not believe in the afterlife and religious techniques, do not respond to the acknowledged problem? I am sure that you, who are reading these lines now, are not responding either.

Man is aware of death, but this knowledge HAS NO INFLUENCE on him. He treats it as the plague was treated in ancient times – he considers it an insurmountable given, inevitability, and takes it as the norm. Similarly today: the problem of mortal man is his belief in the invincibility of death. What makes him think that death is invincible? People have never once thought about it in their entire lives. The absolute majority DO NOT EVEN THINK about resisting death. More to the point, such a thought is as absurd and ridiculous to people as the thought of overcoming the plague was absurd to medieval man. “Well, everything is obvious,” – this is the approximate reasoning of people. A man may say that death cannot be defeated because it is the law of nature. But where did he get this dogma from? The medieval man could refer to God, to the Church, which gave him such information as coming from God. And modern man, where did he get the information that death is invincible? From science? There is no such science in the world. On the contrary, scientists say that although the task is prohibitively difficult, it is in principle solvable. So, I decided to take up this task, already having in my hands the “Svetl” Technologies as a reference point for the beginning of the path, and with the knowledge that allows me to outline this vector of the path. Once again, I want to emphasize, the solution of the problem of overcoming death, not the solution of the problem of the prolongation of life.

IN NATURE THERE IS NO law obligating us to die. On the contrary, in nature there are organisms that show by the fact of their existence, that death can be overcome.

These organisms include, for example, the turritopsis¹ jellyfish. Until now, not a single jellyfish of this type has been recorded that would die a natural death. A rodent with a wonderful name “naked mole rat”, bowhead whale, Aleutian perch – these organisms die, but never grow old.

1 Turritopsis nutricula – With 80 tentacles and only 4 to 5 mm in diameter, this tiny jellyfish bears the coveted name: “immortal.” She is currently the only known living creature on Earth with a reversible life cycle.

If there is no law to grow old and die, there is no concept of natural death. However, THERE IS A CONCEPT of “body imperfection.” IF THE IMPERFECTION IS CORRECTED, death will go away. So there can be only one death from such a position – unnatural. The one reading these lines can agree with many things, but FAITH IS STRONGER than KNOWLEDGE.

If someone decides that this cannot be, because it can never be, you can talk all you want and deliver any facts you like, but he will stick to his belief. This is just my opinion. It needs to be understood on an individual basis. I am counting on those who understand, not on believers... In this series of articles, I will describe everything in detail as an integral plan, which fundamentally changes your understanding and your determination to at least start going down this path.

Today, many of us in our development have come to the limit when a new type of thinking is required to comprehend the being. To find it, you have to rely on NEW REFERENCE POINTS – new postulates. But where can we get them? The only way is to seek support in another existence, by which a different type of reasoning will be formed. The first step on this path is to find a way to enter another state of being in order to form a different type of reasoning. Our cognition begins with perception, goes into understanding, and finishes with a cause. There is nothing more important than a cause.

It is impossible to solve the problem at the same level where it originated. One has to rise above this problem by rising to the next level. You will never solve a problem if you think the same way as those who created it. Everyone knows that this is impossible. But here comes an ignoramus who does not know this – it is he who makes a discovery.

When I discussed this plan of mine with other people I respect, I was often asked: what made me want to lay all my cards on the table, especially those related to the Technologies that had demonstrated their effectiveness in reality? It may seem strange that I write such things openly. With such openness, there is no room for maneuver. “And it will probably be needed in the future,” I’ve been told. It’s hard to argue with that. More than likely some actions would be easier to do with less openness. I thought about it... and came to the conclusion that it is impossible to keep up with all the rabbits (all of the directions that the Technologies open up). It is better to concentrate on one thing. Everything else will come together. And so, the main step, I SEE is the CREATION of A TEAM. A team of like-minded people, imbued with that idea. I am well aware that what I am aiming for is simply impossible to solve alone. If there is no team, nothing will happen. THE QUALITY of THE TEAM IS critical. And this depends directly on how deeply people understand the subject. If they do not understand, if they are just gathered on emotion, there will be no results. That is why I decided to uncover many things that were not uncovered in my writings and which I simply, like Nicolai Levashov, covered in the books with dots...

There is only one way to gather those who understand – to UNCOVER AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE of what they need to understand. An indicator of a team's competence is when people have their own opinion on basic issues.

This minimizes errors. There will be mistakes in any case, but if people have a deep understanding of the subject, so deep that they see the point of investing their time and assets in it (and no matter what those assets are expressed by), there will be far fewer mistakes.

The second reason for maximum openness comes from a confidence that is based on my knowledge and understanding of what is going on today. The understanding that the Old World IS NOT ABLE and will never again be able to confront the New World. Of course, the Old World could destroy the information accelerating its demise, but that would only prolong its agony. Pandora's Box has already been opened, and it has been opened not by me, but by processes that no one will ever be able to change. This is the concept of "saving the saviors" – those who will become the team that, I HAVE NO DOUBT, will solve the problem of OVERCOMING DEATH.

And for those who find the determination and courage to follow this path, I will give a simple piece of advice, but which today, in my opinion, is more than relevant. In order to understand yourself and make a decision for yourself, the first thing to do is to dismiss all those who already think they have made the right decision, think they have understood themselves, and pry into other people's affairs. Never forget – it is not kindness that matters, but the emotion of consciousness. Our enemy is not evil. Our enemy is ignorance. One type of people creates a situation. Others adapt to the situation created. This information of mine is addressed to people of the first type.

Why did I write all this? I want people who, for one reason or another, communicate with me (a very large number of people, and I am glad they do) simply by reading this, – to understand that one of the challenges I face today on this path is the PHYSICAL LACK OF TIME to solve this, I believe, the most important challenge. Just imagine – a person sailing on a ship, in a comfortable cabin, has an attack of appendicitis. I know how to help him and how to save him. But at the same time, the ship on which we are all sailing, and not only carrying this one man, but carrying a mass of people, begins to suffer a disaster – to sink. I know how to save the ship. Where should I run and who should I rescue? To the cabin or to the captain's bridge. And today, I want to appeal again, all the more by discovering a lot and in the hope that people who will explain my position to those who are turning to me for help and thereby they will make the first step into the team that, I am just sure, will begin to form to move towards the purpose that I started talking about and will continue to talk about in this series of articles, it is for this purpose called "series_369".

* * *

The first thing I want to emphasize for the potential and, so to speak, current users of the “SvetL” Programs is that ten years of the “SvetL” Programs working for people is a different process than ten years, for example, of the observation and treatment of a patient by an endocrinologist or gastroenterologist. Users of “SvetL” Technology should be able and not afraid to apply their developed Brain in practice. If you already own any of the “SvetL” Generators, if you use our healing video sessions, if you have even managed to find information about these Technologies in the heap of Internet trash, it means that YOUR BRAIN ALREADY has a potential and a level of development different from the “so called – basic.” What is extremely dangerous in this situation is not just an empty belief in Technology, not a fear of deception or lack of funds – the most dangerous thing is NOT TO GO ANY FURTHER. If you stop at the option “it helped – and I am fine,” if you are satisfied with “it got better with the Bracelet – but I want to buy the Complex” – and then just live comfortably, practicing the skills of a consumer or a functional manufacturer of consumer goods, then something in your life needs to be changed immediately.

Similarly, with health problems that are sluggishly solvable or unsolvable through the “SvetL” Technologies – if such a circumstance has become a reason for stopping your search for knowledge, you have to start using your developed, and capable of further development, Brain. In fact, it, the Brain (i.e. YOU) begins to develop truly only from that moment. And the biggest mistake in this paramount task (I mean the development of the Brain) will be delegating problem-solving to a third party. No matter whom you choose for this role – your development will stall. Of course, my personal work with a person can be estimated by many as a certain unique experience, traditionally consisting for the majority of people of nothing but incredible or unusual sensations, predictions made and realized, and “wow-effects.”

Alas, these are mere scraps of information that you DO NOT HAVE TO BE DISTRACTED BY, but most people base their conclusions on them, including the effectiveness of personal assistance or the work of Technologies. In the first place, if I work on you, that is a bad evaluation for you. It means that you could not assess your own condition, analyze and start looking for the causes of problems, and then deal with them. To realize this sequence, you do not have to have some fantastic qualities and properties – it is enough just to stop trampling around within the acquired and familiar stereotypes that warm the soul (and it is not necessary to do this in one move, though desirable – you can wade through the thorns). Having done this, you yourself will NOT NOTICE as you will make the first step in the development of the Brain, expanding its frequency range, and thus will come very close to developing the very qualities and properties in yourself. If you turned for help (to me) – put an end to this “reliable path of development.” No need to cherish the hope that I will correct something, and then you go along on your own. It doesn’t work that way. Many become completely dependent for years – especially in the current difficult time. Don’t delude yourself with illusions that you will be able to somehow move forward in understanding what is happening during my work with you - if you do not receive detailed explanations on every step of what is being done and in what way - you will only get more confused in your own conjectures. And the explanations that I can and will have time to give (you understand, that’s not worth counting on), will be so crude and superficial, perversely reflecting reality, that I don’t want to write or see them myself, because it is impossible to convey in words the full measure of what, and how it is, in reality happening to you, and what, how and why I “create” out of you. And some things, believe me, are better not told at all. Here, just to soften my words, I would like to add that we are talking now about the possible development of the Brain and not, about the recovery of Man from some of his health problems that arose, through direct participation. To rid a person of a problem that either cannot be fixed by medicine, or, as we are told, cannot be solved, is solved in most cases, but again – on the condition of the DIRECT PARTICIPATION of the Brain, which asked for it.

Some five or six years ago, few people would have been able to understand me if I started to explain this. But now people have changed greatly. They have changed and divided. A bigger part of them will turn away from anything other than official medicine and pharmaceuticals, labeling me a charlatan, and each of you a sectarian. Masses of people, with fancy waving of their hands, will drive away the “SvetL” Technologies, convincing anyone and everyone that such things are very inexpensive and available now on every corner. But very few people will refuse free help, especially when they do not need to move their brains or hands for that. And here let me warn you. I have always said that every act of labor must be rewarded (and not necessarily in money). But I never explained why. And no one asked me or was interested. Everything is simple here – using the terms common people can understand, we’ll say it this way – there must be a balance. In a miniature version – but here albedo also works. If you only take – then sooner or a little bit later and on a larger scale, something will have to give.

Even if you are NOT ASKED FOR. And operating with energy whole structures (for example, within the framework of the concept of a family) – it may not diminish from you personally (especially considering that the work on healing is based and “proceeds” from the work with the Brain), but this fact will hardly bring about some relief for the majority.

The potential of each person, even me – is NOT ENDLESS – the reasons for the cause of health problems are often very, very far from internal ones, and in such cases (and they are the majority) – without having developed your own Brain, without having learned to use it at least for yourself (in your own recovery), you will not be able to take full advantage of my help – sometimes it simply loses its meaning, since the basis for creating, for example, a stable multidimensional protection is simply absent. Listen to my advice – health problems, and even more so now, when you are armed and protected by the “SvetL” Technologies and everything that has been done with the help of these technologies has already been tested, showing wonderful results that very few people can explain (“healing video session 3” and a new “Emergency Rescue Technology” video session “369” and others – tested today but not yet public) – this is a direct possibility for your personal development. Development in comfortable conditions, when everything is good and convenient, is not likely to happen. Overcoming difficulties, finding a solution to a problem, burdened with inconveniences, of course, looks like a heroic feat, and you may call it that if you like. For the rest of us, it is purposefulness.

After a long and unpleasant experience, I have come to the decision – to help those people who are worthy, who really think not only about their own skin, but also about others, who are really ready, having health, to fight for the happiness of others and not for their own happiness first of all. These are the people I HELP AND WILL HELP, and not those who, having received what they needed, get rested, neither thinking about any gratitude, nor my energy spent on him (her).

Summing up everything that has been said and trying to help you to understand, I would like to present the ongoing in a somewhat more intelligible way. It is not the fault of people for what has been done to them, however, only they themselves (individually) can deal with the consequences. It is cruel (and this also reflects a certain pathological weakness and our imperfection) to plunge those who have been created for consumption and who got accustomed to freebies, straight into the ice hole, from which it is clear with a larger viewing angle, that there are no freebies at all. The realization of this can make you “get sick,” especially if you first see and put together the pieces of the mosaic opened by Nicolai Levashov. It is not their (people’s) fault that exertion is something out of the realm of fantasy for them. For this, there are other forms of perversion in which exertion and overexertion are considered useful simply for the sake of exertion, and there is no more strength or brains to think about the result at any stage of exertion. And someone else is so caught up in his own importance that his brain is convulsed to a non-functioning state. All this in various versions at the current stage is nothing more than a piece of garbage, living out his allotted time. Here there is no need to cling to it, and more so – count on its ephemeral reliability.

There are many people who think they think. In fact, they just put old prejudices in a new order. So I want to suggest the way of correcting it. Whether I can do it or not is for you to decide.
